WINTER SUITS & OVERCOATS.

Sensational news rarely finds a space in our advertising columns. But there is a time for all things. And here we give word of one of the most sensational movements in the history of men's clothes retailing. The business of this season was phenomenal and resulted in depleting hundreds of lots of finest suits and overcoats that sold as high as $20, $18, $17 and $15. These broken lots of he New Year are those of The World Almanac and Encyclopedia for 1908. In this book, priceless, though sold at a small price, are 590 pages and facts which nobody will ever pretend to count exactly. The pages are brightly legible and the facts are such as have made and maintained The World Almanac an authority national and international in all lines of ref.

There are new features to the Almanac this year, as there are avery year, and old ones are amplified. The stories are told of the past year's progress at home and abroad, of the Rueso-Japanese war, of the Paname erence and knowledge.

Political statistics—those of the recent campaign and all—are brough up to date. The figures of the country's industrial and educational advance are all there. And there are so many things set forth of common and un common interest that as a rule whoever looks in the Almanac in place has no call to look elsewhere.

It's a wise man or a wise household that, keeping previous editions of The World Almanac still in store, promptly adds this year's issue to the ready-to-hand library. 25c, on newsstands. 35c, by that.
